1. SHAI group leader Carl "Groove" Martin talked to us about writing for the a group that has four lead voices:

CARL MARTIN ACTUALITY: (:23) "For example, there's one song called "COMFORTER", where in the verses, usually when you have groups, one person will sing the verse, and maybe someone will sing a chorus, then someone will sing a second verse, but in this song in particular, people take different parts of the verses so we actually bounce back and forth, like per line, in the verse, and then that gives everyone a chance to get the spotlight."

2. For 25 years now, Elton John and Bernie Taupin have been writing together. Their latest collaboration is "SIMPLE LIFE" -- so we had to ask Elton how it all got started:

ELTON JOHN ACTUALITY: (:30) "Well we met through and advertisement in New Music Express which is a musical paper that is still going, and that was way back in 1967. We've never really collaborated, we've never been in the same room and written a song together, ever, and I think the success, the secret behind it is that we've never stopped each other writing with other people, we haven't just restricted it to ourselves, I mean he wrote "THESE DREAMS" for Heart, and "WE BUILT THIS CITY" for Jefferson Starship. And I think you have to have that freedom, otherwise it's just not fair to restrict yourself just to two people, I think would have broken up before then."

3. "LOVE IS" -- the duet between new singer Brian McKnight and one of the biggest new stars of the last few years -- Vanessa Williams. We spoke to Vanessa at an Awards show a few weeks back, and she told us how her latest hit happened:

VANESSA WILLIAMS ACTUALITY: (:29) "They approached me to be involved in the soundtrack and they had the song already picked out, and it was basically our idea to make it a duet, and Brian McKnight had sang on my album, he has a new album out and I was in love with his voice and I thought it would work as a duet. Plus, I'd never released a single as a duet so, for me, music and lyrics, if they fit hand in hand, it makes me feel like I'm moved, that's the true test."
